

AMERICAN BREAKS SHOT-PUT RECORD IN OLYMPIC GAMES

McDonald Exceeds Former Throw by Over Two Feet.
Rose Comes Second.

(Continued from First Page.)

athletes took the first three consecutive heats with ease.

Charles D. Reidpath, the speedy runner from Syracuse University, was the first to break home. He won the first heat in 22.6 seconds with a record of 22.6 seconds. Reidpath's victory was the signal for a burst of applause, but when Ralph Craig, of the Detroit, Mich., U. M. C. A., took the second, a storm of cheers broke loose from the section where the American spectators were seated.

J. I. Courtney, of the Seattle A. C., won the third heat in a burst of speed which bettered Craig's time. When Courtney romped in the American spectators were wild with delight. They rose in their seats and whooped with glee. Many of them carried flags and waved their banners above their heads while they whooped.

No American showed in the fourth heat, but in the fifth, H. W. Holland, of the Xavier A. C., qualified by running second to Applegarth, the famous English sprinter.

Field Event Summaries.

STOCKHOLM, July 10.—Following is a summary of today's events in the Olympic games.

Sixteen-pound shot put, final.—Won by H. McDonald, Irish-American, A. C. distance, 50.32 feet; second, Ralph Rose, Olympic Club, San Francisco, distance, 49.03 feet; third, L. A. Whitney (supplemental), distance, 44.06 feet. The old Olympic record was 43 feet 7 inches.

200 meters, trial heats, two to qualify. Record 21.3 seconds.

First heat.—First, Charles D. Reidpath, Syracuse University; second, Rolo, of France. Time 22.6 seconds.

Second heat.—First, Ralph Craig, Detroit, U. M. C. A.; second, Rice, Great Britain. Time 22.6 seconds.

Third heat.—First, J. I. Courtney, Seattle, A. C.; second, MacMillan, Great Britain. Time 22.7.

Fourth heat.—First, Luther, Sweden; second, Griggs, Ellis, Holland. Time 22.6 seconds.

Fifth heat.—First, Applegarth, Great Britain; second, H. W. Holland, Xavier A. C. Time 21.7 seconds.

Sixth heat.—First, R. Rau, Germany; second, A. F. D. Anderson, England. Time 24.4 seconds.

Cleveland Man First.

Seventh heat.—First, Carl C. Cook, Cleveland, Ohio, A. C.; second, R. Povey, South Africa. Time 23.2 seconds.

Eighth heat.—First, J. Howard, Mar-tole; second, P. Gonga, Italy. Time 25 seconds.

Ninth heat.—First, K. Lindberg, Sweden; second, Mezel, Hungary. Time 23.0 seconds.

Tenth heat.—First, P. C. Gerhardt, Olympic A. C. San Francisco; second, W. H. A. D'Arcy, of England. Time 22.1 seconds.

Eleventh heat.—First, Donald F. Lippincott, University of Pennsylvania; second, G. Moller, Sweden. Time 22.3 seconds.

Twelfth heat.—First, Alvin T. Meyer, Irish-American A. C.; second, R. C. Duncan, England. Time 22.8 seconds.

Thirteenth heat.—First, Donald Young, Boston A. A.; second, G. N. Seedhouse, England. Time 22.8 seconds.

Fourteenth heat.—First, Clement P. Wilson, Coe College, Iowa; second, C. H. Patching, South Africa. Time 22.8 seconds.

Fifteenth heat.—First, N. Hermann, German; second, Iahvan De Van, Hungary. Time 22.3 seconds.

Sixteenth heat.—Macintosh, of England, first; and W. Stewart, of South Africa, second. Time 26 seconds.

Seventeenth heat.—First, D. H. Jacobs, Great Britain; second, S. Jacobson, Sweden. Time 23.2 seconds.

Eighteenth heat.—First, T. Person, Sweden; second, R. Schurer, France. Time 22.2 seconds.

One of the most talked of athletes competing here is Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian, who is taking part in the swimming competitions. So interested has King Gustav become in the record breaking water sports of the dark-skinned American that he had a private swimming match arranged, in which the Hawaiian went through a number of difficult swimming feats in the water.

Finn Wins Long Run.

H. Kohlenmanen, of Finland, won the 5,000-meter run. J. Bouvin, of France, was second, and E. W. Hudson, of England, was third.

The defeat of the Americans by the fleet Finnish runner Kohlenmanen did not cause any great surprise, as the Americans practically conceded defeat. The Americans who qualified for the final in the 5,000 meters were George V. Bonhag, T. S. Berna, and Louis J. Scott.

The winning of this event gave Finland three more points.

In the afternoon the race turned to a light rain, but the events were continued without intermission.

Belgium defeated Hungary in the water polo contest by the score of 6 to 3.

In the plain diving competition for women, Grete Thomsen, of Sweden, was first with 362 points; Tisa Regnell, of Sweden, was second with 341 points, and Isabelle White, of England, third with 333 points.

Abel Kiviat, of the Irish-American A. C., ran second, and Norman S. Taber, of Brown University, third, who ran second in the 1,500-meter final, ran a good race, but he could not overtake the speedy Jackson. The showing of John Paul Jones, of Cornell University, was a distinct disappointment. Jones finished third in the 1,500-meter final, although he had been touted as a winner. The Americans who qualified to compete in the semi-finals of the 200-meter race are as follows: Reidpath, Craig, Courtney, Holland, Cooke, Gerhardt, Lippincott, Meyer, and Wilson.

Kohlenmanen's times for the 5,000 meters (5 miles and 180 yards), was 14 minutes 26 seconds.

Many besides Sullivan believed that the Finn had broken the world's two-mile record, but his time was not taken by the mile but at the finish.

The Americans, who cheered so lustily at the conclusion of the shot put were silent when the winners of the 1,500 and 5,000 meter finals were announced.

Is Oxford Man.

Jackson, winner of the 1,500 meters, is a young Oxford University student. Jackson ran a steady race up to the stretch where, within 100 yards of the finish, he made a spurt which carried him to the front. Shepard, whose position was next to the Pole drew ahead at the start, but could not stand the terrific pace.

At the second turn of the 1,500 meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

At the third turn it looked as though the Americans had the race clinched. Abel Kiviat was running second to Jones, moving at an even, steady pace and apparently reserving his forces for the finish. Oscar Hedlund, another American was running well to the front, while Shepard was in the rear. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

In the semi-finals of the 200-meter final, Van Siegel, a German, took the lead away from the American. At this time the ones in the stadium expressed the opinion that Shepard was saving his strength for a spurt. On the third lap the German had to give way to Jones, a great cheer went up from the Americans as Jones came back to fourth place, his legs working with the rapidity of pistons.

POLICE SUBURBAN TWO CITY BLOCKS SEEKING SLAYER

Murderer of Connor Girl Is Believed to Be Between Lines of Detectives.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The city's best detectives, after following every lead possible to obtain, are working today on the theory that the murderer of twelve-year-old Julia Connor, whose mutilated body was found in vacant lot last Sunday, lives in the neighborhood of her home at 3872 Third avenue.

Plain clothes men completely surround the blocks between 117th and 173d streets and Third and Fulton avenues to prevent any one entering or leaving without undergoing close scrutiny.

Day and night they will be kept there until there is an arrest or until they abandon hope of clearing up the mystery. The police are believed to have clues they have withheld from the public. They admit that none of those that figure in the earlier stories of the shocking crime is likely to produce results.

Whether the degenerate who slashed and stabbed the pretty Connor girl and threw her body into the vacant lot had a block from her home is an elderly man or a youth is a matter over which the police disagree.

It is accepted as probable by Captain Price and his men that the girl was lured to the unoccupied flat in which she was horribly murdered in a store, whether by some person she knew or by a stranger who sent her on an errand or used some other plausible ruse cannot be determined.

It is understood that the police are today seeking a youth not more than eighteen, who was working in a store in the block in which the girl was slashed to death. He has been missing since Monday morning.

C. W. Morse Again Ill.

BATH, Me., July 10.—A recurrence of the attack of acute rheumatism, many thought would be fatal to the banker, Charles W. Morse, when he was taken suddenly ill a week ago, has again caused great anxiety among his family and friends here. The compulsory dinner which was to have been given by Bath citizens in his honor has been postponed until next Monday evening.

LARGE GATHERING ATTENDS SERVICES IN COUNTRY CHURCH

Evangelistic Work Is Being Conducted at Dickerson, Near Rockville.

ROCKVILLE, Md., July 10.—Evangelistic services which are in progress in the Methodist Church South, at Dickerson, this county, are attracting large gatherings. They are in charge of Revs. Williams and Mitchell, pastors of the M. E. Church at Poolesville and the Dickerson Church, respectively, and they are being assisted by Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, of Washington, presiding elder, and other ministers.

Rev. F. M. Richardson, pastor of the M. E. Church South, here, officiated at the marriage yesterday afternoon of Richard Paul Oetzel, of Washington, and Miss Margaret Adele Eudonnes, of Bladensburg, Md., the ceremony taking place at the parsonage. The young people were unaccompanied, and left for Washington immediately after the ceremony.

It was grandfathers against grandsons in the police court here yesterday, and the grandson came out on top. Minor Morris, colored, who lives at Lyttletonville, near Linden, this county, had his grandson, Pearl Morris, who also lives at Lyttletonville, arrested on a charge of stealing $4, it being represented by the old man that the boy entered his home while the members of the family were away and took the money from a trunk. Justice Mace couldn't see where the evidence connected the boy with the disappearance of the coin and dismissed the case.

The will of Thomas A. Burdette, who died a few weeks ago at his home near Boyds, this county, which has been admitted to probate in the orphans' court here, bequeaths the entire estate, valued at about $10,000, to the testator's widow, Mrs. Sarah P. Burdette, for life.

Hotel Proprietor
Asks Jury Trial

Georgel Gardiner, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, charged with the violation of the District excise laws in that he sold intoxicants to minors, demanded a jury trial when arraigned in the Police Court today.

MONTROSE HOTEL SOLD AND IS TO BE REMODELED

Eldridge E. Jordan Understood to Be Purchaser of Property.

The old Montrose Hotel, at the northeast corner of H and Fourteenth streets northwest, was sold today and will be remodelled. It was transferred to Annie E. McQueen, but it is understood the real purchaser is Eldridge E. Jordan, president of the United States Trust Company. Around $175,000 is understood to have been paid for the property. The sale was made through the office of Story & Cobb.

The property has a frontage of forty-six feet on Fourteenth street and seventy-five feet on H. The purchaser is reported to contemplate the remodeling of the first floor into stores, leaving the upper stories under lease, as at present, for hotel purposes. A deed of trust for $162,500 was filed in connection with the transfer.

This is the second large transfer in this square within a week. On Saturday the Builders and Manufacturers' Exchange on H Street, a few doors to the east, was sold to Frank Walter.

Mr. Jordan is also said to be the buyer of three pieces of property forming the northeast corner of Fourteenth and Corcoran streets northwest. This sale was made through the office of Stone & Fairfax, but the consideration is not disclosed. The property fronts fifty-two feet on Corcoran street and seventy-one on Fourteenth street.

Mr. Jordan also took title today to the residence at the southwest corner of avenue.

Hotel Proprietor
Asks Jury Trial

Georgel Gardiner, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, charged with the violation of the District excise laws in that he sold intoxicants to minors, demanded a jury trial when arraigned in the Police Court today.

LACK OF QUORUM DELAYS BUSINESS OF LEGISLATION

Naval Appropriation Bill Sent to Conference Without Committee Action.

"Yield not to temptation, for yielding means delay," was the text decided upon by the party leaders in their early morning sessions to the prodigious members of the House today.

Baseball and languishing desires for "home, sweet home" have made it almost impossible to transact business in the House. The combined temptations have proved too strong for the powers of resistance and have tied up some of the most important legislation now before Congress.

The leaders today laid down the gospel to the weary ones, telling them if closer attention was not given to business that adjournment within the next month was a myth.

The Committee on Naval Affairs which has before it the naval appropriations bill was scheduled for a meeting today. A quorum could not be found, and the idea was abandoned. Other committees of the House, including patents and claims, found themselves in a like position, and were unable to transact business.

The same situation prevailed when the House met at noon. Only thirty-four of the 386 members were present.

Realizing the impossibility of committee action, Chairman Padgett placed the naval appropriation bill before the House with the request that it be sent to conference without committee consideration.

Speaker Clark then announced that Representatives Padgett of Tennessee, Gregg of Texas, and Foss of Illinois would act as conferees for the House.

It was generally believed among the members today that the result of the conference will be a compromise between the Senate and House authorizing a single dreadnought instead of two, as now provided in the Senate bill.

Chevy Chase Lake Is Drawing Big Crowds

Cool, delightful Chevy Chase Lake is winning its full quota of votaries these nights. The advent of midsummer weather has brought out the charms of this resort. Its cluster of thick groves, its silvery lake, its multitude of natural attractions have all combined to make it extremely popular.

Music by a large section of the Marine Band continues to be the stellar attraction, with dancing a close second. The noisy service is ample to provide for the large crowds.

Nadine Face Powder